

Introduction

July 28, 2018

Taki is a card game invented by Haim Shapir. In Taki the cards could be color cards(i.e red,green,blue and yellow) or without any color.

Taki consist of three types of cards: numbers and special cards which are color cards and special cards without color.

The game is played like so, at the beginning each player receive 8 cards and a card is placed openly in the pile.

On each player's turn he can choose from the following options:

- a) Draw a card from the deck.
- b) Given the color of the card in the pile, the player can remove a card from his hand of the same color.
- c) The player can remove a card from his hand of the same value(?) as the card in the pile but in different color.
- d) The player can remove a card from his hand if it that card has no color.